Category:Books about diseases and disordersQ: Convert a string containing date into milliseconds In one of my Angular applications I'm using javascript in a controller to convert an ISO string to the date in milliseconds. From a html input the value of the date is 30/12/2015 function getDate(data) { var d = data.date; var date = new Date(data.date); var date = date.getTime(); return date; } $scope.selectedData = { data: getDate('30/12/2015') }; I get a empty object in the $scope.selectedData. I guess the problem is with the ISO string I'm using. The date string used in the ISO string is like : 2015-12-30 A: Try this code: var mydate = new Date("2016-10-01"); alert("The date is: " + mydate); We can provide a time using this method. Q: mysql_fetch_array or while loop I try to insert data from a user submitted PHP form into a mysql table. It works fine, however there is a php warning, which I think is due to something that is a copy/paste error, but I can't figure it out. I think it has something to do with a while loop. Here's my code: $sql = "INSERT INTO `tbl` (`id`, `add`, `prvname`, `prvphone`, `prvemail`, `date`) VALUES (?,?,?,?,?,NOW())"; $stmt = mysql_query($sql,$mysqli); if($stmt){ echo "Successfully added new contact!"; } The mysql_fetch_array also gives an empty result. I tried a while loop, but with no luck. How can I make this work? A: You need to switch the order of the parameters to the VALUES clause in your query. INSERT INTO `tbl` (`id`, `add`, `prvname`, `prvphone`, `prvemail`, `date`) VALUES (?,NOW(),
