What's New In Adobe Photoshop 2022 (Version 23.1.1)?

Q: How to combine mod_rewrite with node.js / Express? I'm working with mod_rewrite on the server side of a Node.js/Express app, but if the user navigates directly to the file they're requesting (in this case, /path/to/app/js/index.html) I'd prefer to serve them index.html. I can't figure out how to do that with mod_rewrite. The only way I've found to accomplish that is to call express.Router.get('/').dispatch('/js/index.html'). However, in that case Express can't serve regular Express views. Another problem I have is that for the most part mod_rewrite is working nicely, but I'm also using ajax to make requests to a variety of different files (a cdn, and individual http requests via xhr.open). I'm figuring these problems will be solved by hosting the app on a CDN since then I wouldn't need to do any rewriting, but they're not solved yet. Is what I'm doing the right way to accomplish this? A: If you want to only use the server side of your app for static content then you can just leave the routing up to the server, and add your own static file handler for serving static content: `app.all('*', function (req, res, next) { res.sendFile(path.join(__dirname, './assets/index.html')); next(); });` Then if you are using some kind of a CDN to deliver your static assets you'll want to make sure that the requests to your server are proxied: `app.listen(3000, function () { var proxy = require('http-proxy'); var opts = { host: 'api.mycdn.com', port: 3000, pathRewrite: {'^/': ''} }; var proxyServer = proxy.createServer(opts); var host = opts.host; var req = proxyServer.proxyRequest; proxyServer.on('`
