The photo was in fact taken at the House of Lords two weeks ago on October 18, 2011, during an unrecorded session. Many thanks to Rev. Thomas Olmstead for sending this photo to the court blog. Thomas, it looks like you are right in asking if Thatcher did sign the amendment (although it would be easier to find a photo of her in the traditional black gown rather than the one in a red suit in this photo). After you have your answer, take a look at the photo posted in this post, and think about why the original caption was not changed to say, "Margaret Thatcher, signing Tony Blair's amendment to the Charities Act to stop the Church of England and Catholic Church charities from claiming charitable status."Borders mcdougal ky college - that she met the bicentennial project As borders mcdougal ky college with business, it's best to look at what goes on in the global economy. WASHINGTON - Secretary of Defense Chuck Hagel has announced a new proposal to cut the budget of the Department of Defense, saying it will give military leaders the flexibility to make the right decisions in a time of budget cuts. In a speech at the Center for Strategic and International Studies on Monday, Hagel said the proposal would trim $25 billion in military spending in 2015 and then increase military spending by $25 billion to $521 billion by 2017. "I want you to have more authority to act," Hagel said. "I want you to have more flexibility to adjust to new threats and opportunities." Hagel pointed to the drawdown in Afghanistan and the change in the mission there, from fighting Taliban fighters to training and equipping the Afghan security forces, as proof that the military had to be flexible and adapt. In fact, the challenge is "even more intense than that," he said. "I think the enemy has changed." Hagel's new proposal would repeal some of the financial restrictions that have existed for the past several years, give the military the ability to shift money as needed, and would let them change the way money is spent so that they can have a clearer picture of what their budgets should be. Defense budget cuts have been made under President Obama and would continue under his proposed budget. The Pentagon's budget is currently $514.4 billion, and if the budget cuts were fully implemented, it would be $533 billion. In addition to the Pentagon, federal agencies like the Department of Homeland Security would also see cuts. Hagel said the defense cuts, which come at a time when the U.S. is facing a number of threats around the world, are in keeping with a strategy of "don't do stupid stuff." Hagel said that includes taking care of U.S. soldiers and Marines, and
