Year after year, the thousands of hours that our company spends working on Game-play, GMCP and AI throughout the production pipeline are up against a crushing version of Destiny 3, where our efforts are offset by the game itself. On top of all that, we're forced to work in mysterious silence, knowing that for many of our players, our voice is the only part of this experience that we share. No one outside of our teams can hear our conversations or see our tears, can feel the anger or fear or sadness we feel inside. We can only see our pain on the surface. We need you. Hundreds of players have shared their anger and frustration with us directly. Some have even expressed the same pain on social media, with rants and memes circulating on the internet. We realize that this is frustrating for our player base, but we must be honest with our community and ourselves. We have to know that we aren't alone. Our teams have felt your pain. We've felt it. You're not alone. We hear you, and we understand that this 3e33713323
