Father of the Bride, Father of the Groom, and PADRE of the Bride Each person provides a distinctly different role in a wedding ceremony, not simply as a representative of the family, but also one of the various party roles. Father of the Bride Father of the bride is the father who has the most influence over the wedding. He plays a role in arranging and planning the wedding, although there are other possible roles that the father might play that aren't included in the wedding ceremony, such as naming the bride and groom. If the wedding is a civil ceremony or if the wedding isn't religious, it's likely that the bride will not be named by the father, and she may instead be given a surname, such as Carson, Cooper, or Diaz. Father of the Groom Father of the groom plays a role similar to the father of the bride, only it is in the groom's role. Usually this is done by the bride's father or other male relative who is close to the groom or who would be considered a suitable candidate to play the role. Father's Day is also a popular day to host a wedding. The day occurs on the third Sunday in June, and while the day may be used to celebrate family members and role models, it's typically a day for the groom and bride to celebrate their union. PADRE of the Bride Father's Day isn't the only day that a wedding can be held. It could be held at any time during the year, and it's often done at the end of the month, as the bride might not even think of herself as a married woman until the

It runs silently in the background so you don't need to have to watch for it to finish. Install Partner

HowTo DHAKA (Reuters) - Bangladesh's crackdown on illegal Facebook accounts spreading misinformation was successful in blocking at least 8 million accounts this year, with the total closing up to 16 million from last year, its government said on Monday. Slideshow (2 images) Home Minister Asaduzzaman Khan said blocking the accounts has been a "great success" and was only the first step to educate the public and make them aware of the importance of maintaining a social media free of propaganda. "It is important that the government and people should be a little bit responsible on how social media accounts are used," said Asaduzzaman. "We are not going to let them (illegal Facebook accounts) harm us." The number of blocked accounts was nearly double the number from the year before which was cited by a member of parliament on grounds of privacy. Reuters reported last year that the government began blocking the accounts on a trial basis in May after authorities found a significant number of accounts spreading misinformation and rumours. Facebook said in January it had removed 21.5 million fake accounts in Bangladesh and India that may have been used to spread misinformation in the countries, partly after media reports highlighted the scale of the problem. Social media platforms in other parts of Asia have been accused of giving space to various forms of disinformation, such as fake news and hate speech. Facebook's free use of the word "jungle" to describe the slums of Dhaka was particularly criticised after the most recent attack there that killed a dozen garment workers this month. In November, the government of India imposed a nationwide ban on Facebook, Google and Twitter to check the spread of fake news and misinformation in the country, where several people have been lynched after rumours spread online that they were child traffickers. The global firm said it had acted on an appeal by the government, and had disabled 300 fake accounts, several fake groups
