I would like to get the reference of the status popup of a component. In the dialog.js of sencha touch2 we could find /* * Show a dialog to allow the user to choose an item * @param {String} message Message to be displayed * @param {Object} options * @param {Ext.Component} target A reference to the target component */ Ext.define('Ext.ux.Dialog', { extend: 'Ext.Component', xtype: 'dialog', config: { ... }, but when I try to do like this to get a reference of the status button: .btn-primary-outline-dark { background: url(../app/resources/images/close.png); height: 10px; width: 10px; } I got a 404 error: GET 404 (NOT FOUND) I did a reference of what was a button in the source file, and I got a reference of the div. It seems that this is not a button, but I would like to know if there is a way to get a reference of the status popup. A: The button you want is Ext.base.button.Reference. According to docs, there is setCls method for you to set the class and you can style it as you want. 1. My server responses with a status code from 201 to 500. What happens if the file is missing? I tried to use NSURLSession to download the json file as data task, but as soon as the status code doesn't equal 201, I have a error. I tried to print the response and it doesn't even have a content type "application/json". I searched the web and I can't find a working way to import a.json file. Someone please have a quick solution? I would appreciate any help
