The results are a more detailed, accurate and in-depth physics engine, players' physical behaviors, and added animation elements. The increased realism of the player animations created by using real-life data means that player behaviors can be further modified. FIFA 22 also introduces responsive AI, advanced contextual logic, and a revised career mode that will allow players to set the path of their own career and create a player tailored to their specific style. The new set of features were implemented in collaboration with PES Pro Clubs. FIFA's new Player Sizing Mode By entering the size of his players, players become larger or smaller than their counterparts on the pitch in real life. This allows players of any size to play on FIFA's refined pitch, pitch surfaces, and goalkeepers. Players are also more physically aware in comparison to FIFA 17, making them aware of what moves they can and can't make. FIFA's revamped size and age models FIFA's Predefined Player Sizing Results Dimensionally-Correct Player Movement FIFA 20 introduced an extremely accurate physics engine, which correctly simulates player movement on pitches based on their size. FIFA 22 further increases accuracy by expanding that system into more player movement angles. Focusing on pitch sizes of 140x80, 170x90, 210x80 and 270x80, FIFA 22 enables players of a size to perform more accurately across the pitch, with the biggest improvement being made in high-speed movement. Press the Thumbs Up or Down icon to toggle the players' size or face. FIFA 22 introduces a new physics engine called "Flaming Goal Scoring," which means goals can be scored by just about any player anywhere on the pitch. In FIFA 22, players can apply physics to controls like shooting, fouling and catching a ball, and all of these interactions lead to one final step - scoring a goal! Teamwork
