1 16 11 19 17 17 13 9 3 2 4 7 1 17 12 22 8. 26. New through the 2012/13 season, the West Coast Collection of the West Coast Seeds S-Type Series is a ground-breaking collection of 'starter' and 'prove-it' cannabis. The S-Type Seeds were created by our crack breeding team, who have carefully selected high quality genetics and infused them with pure cannabis goodness. Upon germination, these early-stage strains are ready to start growing within a few weeks. From gorgeous, premium Sativa's such as #3 Maui-Honeo to aggressive hybrids, such as #20 Sour Diesel, the S-Type Collection really can't be beat. West Coast Seeds have teamed up with the same high-level breeders as High Times to create this superb selection of powerhouses for the home grower. In 2012, the S-Type Collection has been further enhanced, whilst still maintaining its 'early-stage' feel. A new Junior/Grower's Range has been created, introducing a set of powerful, limited edition strain names in three enticing shades of brown. For just $14.95, you can be the proud owner of one of four colours - Kush, Soft, Skunk or Haze.

Q: Write a function that takes as input two type I have to write a C-code for a function called 'calculateDistance' that takes two char types (say 'int' and 'int' to just make the point) and returns a double. I'm asking for your help to point out what I need to do exactly to get my code right. For example, int is a type? can I write a function with an input of two type int and 'int'? or I should declare two int and put one into each variable of the function? A: I'm asking for your help to point out what I need to do exactly to get my code right. What exactly is wrong with it? If you're getting a warning because of the compiler's concern, then you know where to fix it and what it is. I'm asking for your help to point out what I need to do exactly to get my code right. If you meant to ask what functions should be used, then you'll have to learn C. The functions needed to convert an int to a double, like double, float
